SUFFERED TWELVE YEARS
CATARRH OF STOMACH

W. H. Shanks' Scottsburg, Ind., Home.

Most of our testimonials are old ac-|catarrh. A long list of failures in the quaintances. That is to say, we have been in correspondence with them ten or fifteen years.

Mr. Shanks, however, is a new convert. He is an old friend of Peru, but he has attracted our attention to the fact until very lately. We welcome him to the host of users and believers in Peru. His appearance speaks for itself.

HONOR PAID MEMORY OF SENATOR MORGAN

Southern Commercial Congress Lays Alabama for Advocacy of Canal

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 28.—Delegates to the Commercial Congress of the Southern States, which is in session here today, paid a fitting tribute to the memory of the late Senator Morgan, of Alabama, who for more than thirty years advocated an "interstate" waterway. In thirty minutes of prayer and eulogies, the delegates at noon at all of which Senator Morgan was eulogized as one of the greatest and most persistent advocates of a canal.

Following closely on the heels of President Wilson's statement yesterday that the United States would gain no territory by conquest, Senator John E. Handley, of Louisiana, offered a resolution at this morning's session that the congress should at once begin an investigation of how the United States could gain territory from Colombia. He said the United States should not ignore the claims of the smaller states. The resolution went to committee.

The women of the south came in for a large share of the activities of the congress today when the first convention of the women's auxiliary of its organization opened its convention. Mrs. Thomas M. Owen, president, gave the principal address, telling of the activities of the organization during the past year and saying that much more was expected now that the first convention was under way. Other speakers included Mrs. Edwin Crain, president of the Alabama organization, Mrs. Charles Shawhan, president of the South Carolina organization, Mrs. O. N. O'Neil, wife of Alabama's governor, and Mrs. Louise C. Lindsey, president of the Tennessee congress. Mrs. W. Finley, who was to deliver one of the principal addresses at the afternoon session, did not get here. She is the wife of Mr. W. Finley, of New Orleans, and one of the important speakers at the afternoon session.

EXPECTED GOLD SNAP FAILED TO SHOW UP

Cloudy and Warmer, Is Official Forecast for Wednesday

"No chance for rain today," said Forecaster W. Hermann Tuesday. "It may be a little cloudy, but the thermometer will remain in the forties, with a possibility of a slight rise. The outlook for Wednesday is cloudy and warmer." The cold snap which seemed imminent Monday night failed to materialize. Only a gentle warning was sent that if you haven't changed your "woolies," you'd better get busy "very warm soon."

The eastern and central parts of the country had suffered a cold depressing rain. The rain did little damage, but piercing winds gave the outlook a pessimistic view.

"Warmer, possibly rain tomorrow," is the report.

A Dog Peeps Tells Of (London Chronicle). An interesting dog story is found in Peep's Diary, which is dated September 11, 1913. Here it is: "Dorothy Williams, who did carry me into his garden, he bathed me with a cat and do it with a dog. He did show me how a dog that he bathed me with a cat and do it with a dog. He did show me how a dog that he bathed me with a cat and do it with a dog."

HOTEL GUESTS THROWN INTO PANIC BY FIRE

Heroic Work Prevented Big Damage to Valuable Peach-tree Property

Fire that originated in the Independent safe, located in the basement of 13 Marietta street, shortly before 2 o'clock Tuesday morning, threatened for a time to wipe out valuable property fronting on Peachtree street and west scantly-occupied houses of Williams House No. 3 and the Hillburn house on Wallon street. Panic-stricken into the chill early morning air. The combined efforts of six fire companies who worked heroically kept the blaze confined to a very limited area.

When the companies arrived the fire had eaten through to the barbershop of Alfred Nash, located above the lanchonette. In the rear of the establishment was burning a blind alley adjoining the rear of the Benita theater. The flames burning out of the back windows found an opening here in a veritable fire and fanned by a stiff breeze mounted to the top of the theater.

It was at this time that the danger of a dangerous fire appeared most imminent and the guests of the Williams house and Hillburn hotel were warned to get out. Scores of guests rushed down the steps carrying their clothes and valuables in their arms, while a large force of men began to remove the stock of the stores adjacent to the fire. Many of the hotel owners took their suitcases and even trunks out of the windows.

SMYRNA WILL FORM A BOARD OF TRADE

Meeting Tuesday Evening to Discuss Details of Plan

Plans for organizing the business and civic interests of Smyrna into a board of trade will be brought at a meeting in the city of Smyrna, and interested citizens will discuss the matter again tomorrow evening. An address from Wade H. Leahy, industrial agent for the Atlanta chamber of commerce, will be given. The board of trade will have a meeting in the high school auditorium, and a temporary organization will be effected at that time. The movement already has received the approval of all the leading citizens of Smyrna, and apparently only the details of procedure remain to be decided. In the matter are Dr. J. N. Browner, J. H. Hill, P. J. Voss, and several others.

GOV. SLATON RETURNS FROM COMMERCE, GA.

Governor Slaton returned to Atlanta Monday evening from Commerce, Georgia. He had spent the day visiting the Four-County fair in progress in that city. The governor was very much impressed with the agricultural, manufacturing and educational exhibits. During the day he delivered two speeches, one to the children on the necessity and advantage of an education, and the other to the farmers on agriculture. The governor cautioned the farmers not to allow their enthusiasm over the present profitable crop year to cause them to waste their money. He urged them to be economical so that they would still be independent, even though fortune was not so kind to them next season.

Wednesday Governor Slaton will visit the Four-County fair now being held at Washington, Wilkes county.

NEW YORK POLICE SEEK COPPER MINE OWNER

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—It was learned today that friends of William H. Worthen copper mine owner from Douglas, Ark., a man of wealth, had asked the police to trace his whereabouts. He came to New York to see the world's baseball championship game and transacted business here until a week ago, when he suddenly disappeared. Nothing further was heard of him. The last seen of him, it is said, was on the night of October 23, when he took a taxicab on Broadway supposedly to return to his hotel.

The Little Girl and "The Creek at Home."

Once a little girl's aunt took her to see Niagara Falls. The child was evidently deeply impressed, although she made no spoken comment.

"Well, darling," said her aunt. "What do you think of it? Isn't it wonderful?"

"Yes," replied girlie thoughtfully. "But do you know, Aunt Mary, I b'lieve our creek at home could do that if it only had a place."

There's loyalty for you!

Come to think of it, that child, bless her little heart, had the root of the matter in her. She was a loyalist, an optimist and a high-grade philosopher—all in one.

"OUR CREEK AT HOME . . . IF IT ONLY HAD A PLACE!"

We whose names are signed to this advertisement are, as you will see by scanning the list, engaged in the manufacture and handling of foods and foodstuffs.

Each of us is proud of his own specialty and naturally desirous of exploiting his own particular product. But just now we are making COMMON CAUSE of our interests—pooling them, so to say—in order to tell ATLANTA people what we are doing and what we want them to do.

In the quaint phrase of the little girl, we want to tell you what "our creek at home could do if it only had a place."

ATLANTA-MADE goods are the goods for ATLANTA folks. That's the idea.

Suppose all ATLANTA believed this! What would be the effect on the general business of the town? Not on OUR business only, but on every other man's business?

Just suppose that the loyalty for which ATLANTA is famed all over America could take the splendid and practical form of declaring itself devoted to the ATLANTA-GOODS-FOR-ATLANTA-FOLKS idea,—

Here's about what would come to pass:

We would have to enlarge our factories and plants. That would mean the purchase or the rental of more ground and bigger buildings.

It would mean the employment of labor, the purchase of material, the engagement of architects, contractors, machinery men, light men, power men.

It would mean the placing of new insurance, of more advertising, of more business with the banks.

It would bring employment to more people and swell our payrolls accordingly. Wage-earners have to live and they spend their money in the town where they work.

It would mean a larger volume of business for us, BUT—

IT WOULD ALSO MEAN AN INCREASED PROSPERITY FOR EVERY OTHER BUSINESS CONCERN IN THE CITY.

We are all bound so closely together in the economy of commerce that "the eye cannot say to the hand, I have no need of thee: nor again, the head to the feet, I have no need of you."

To make a further borrowing from the picturesque language of the sage just quoted:

"If the whole body were an eye, where were the hearing? If the whole were hearing, where were the smelling?"

No, men and women of ATLANTA, our interests are all one;—what ever helps one line of clean legitimate business helps ALL.

If ATLANTA-MADE goods were inferior to the goods produced elsewhere, we could not feel justified in asking you to buy them.

If our factories and our methods were not up to the standard of modern efficiency, we would not expect the patronage of wideawake and discriminating people.

But we know that our lines are GOOD, FULL VALUE, FINE QUALITY, and the equal of the very best in the whole country.

We ask you to buy them on their MERIT. We couldn't expect even the ATLANTA brand of loyalty to respond to inferior foodstuffs.

"THE CREEK AT HOME CAN DO IT." It is up to the FOLKS AT HOME to give it the place.

Begin by asking your grocer tomorrow morning for the goods we make TAKE NO OTHER. Stick to your home-folks. You get full value. You get as good as the country provides. You help us, you help the town and you help YOURSELF.

ATLANTA SHRINERS WON'T RUN MONTGOMERY TRAMP

Special Will Run From Macomb and Not From This City

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 22.—The Atlanta Shrine temple has published a few days ago a notice to the effect that it would not run a special train to Montgomery, Ala., on Thursday night, and that it would not run a special train to Macomb, Ga., on Friday morning. The notice was published in the Atlanta Journal and in the Atlanta Constitution.

The notice seems to have been a misunderstanding of the part of the Shriner's of Atlanta on the part of the Shriner's of Montgomery. The Shriner's of Montgomery are not running a special train to Atlanta on Thursday night, and the Shriner's of Atlanta are not running a special train to Macomb on Friday morning.

VETS MUST SHOW BIBLE RECORD TO GET PENSIONS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Led by "Private" John M. Daisell, the Grand Army of the Republic is assailing a recent order of the commissioner of pensions that Civil War veterans seeking pensions must furnish proofs of their family name, their employment for the ten years preceding 1860, and produce a Bible record of their family. Many deserving veterans, it was contended, would find it impossible to comply with the requirements. This, it was pointed out, is especially true of negro veterans, many of whom were born in slavery.

YOUNG MEN CLEARED ON CHARGE OF THEFT

Ray Baumberger and W. R. Farley Are Proved Not Guilty of Taking Watch

Ray Baumberger and W. R. Farley, of West Baker street, who were arrested Saturday charged with picking the pocket of P. G. Anthony, of Augusta, were exonerated at their trial before the superior court Monday afternoon.

Anthony introduced at the recorder's court showed positively that when he found the watch, which he was accused of stealing, Mr. Farley held it above his head and asked in a loud tone if anyone in the vicinity had lost it. This corroborated his story that he had found the watch. Later and before he was arrested, the evidence showed Mr. Farley had inserted in the newspaper advertisement calling on the corner of the watch to identify it.

PROVE GOOD CHARACTER.
Baumberger, who was arrested at the Georgia-Virginia football game, had been exonerated by the police by ex-Councilman Dan Walraven, who admitted to see that he had not seen him take the watch.

The complete was the vindication of the two young men that Recorder Broyles, in discussing the case against them, made the special request that mention of the action be made.

E. O. West, employer of the boys, appeared in police court and assisted in the defense. A vigorous defense of them, not only from the specific charge of theft, but from attack on their characters, he made both in the preliminary hearing and the trial, stating that he had known the boys since last June and the other has been with him two years.

Declines to Support Wife Who Neglected Home for Baseball

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Oct. 28.—James Cooper, of Larksville, deserted his wife because she was an ardent baseball fan, she testified before Judge O'Boyle, when Mrs. Cooper had him arrested for non-support. Cooper told the judge his wife attended a ball game nearly every day the past season and he was compelled to prepare his own supper. He said she talked baseball morning, noon and night, and that he took no interest in the sport.

Judge O'Boyle suggested that with the baseball season over, Mrs. Cooper probably would remain at home, and on her promise to cook the meals the judge sent the couple home.

Express Company's Injunction Nullifies City's Famous Notification Ordinance

(By Associated Press.)
ROME, Oct. 28.—A notable increase in the amount of liquor shipped to Rome is reported by the officers of the express company, and the railroads during the last few days. The Southern Express company secured an injunction preventing the city from enforcing the famous notification ordinance, which requires the companies to notify the chief of police of all liquor shipments exceeding one gallon at least six hours before delivery to the consignee.

The ordinance was in effect only ten days and during that time the average amount of liquor received was only about forty gallons a day, but now the

THE EVENING STORY

(Copyright, 1913, by W. W. Warner.)

Della was a failure. A complete, undeniable failure. Her dressmaking, millinery, clerking, candy-making, bookkeeping and stenography. Needles which sewed straight for other girls—stupid girls than Della—went zigzag when her firm white fingers held them. "Don't waste your time dressmaking," said the forewoman of the big shop with cruel yet kind candor. "It isn't in you. You ain't got the knack."

It was the same with millinery. Della knew when a hat was pretty and the horse chitry, but she couldn't make anything but lopsided loops and drapes that fell flat, like a cake without baking powder, and where velvet should lie smooth, under Della's touch, it puckered; where it should be gathered, she always managed to draw it straight. As a clerk she was a trifle better. She could write a check and give out parcels. But there were so many girls who wrote more checks and gave out parcels more swiftly that Della was always laid off among the first when slack times came. And the manager never sent for her to come back. She tried candy-making, and always got vanilla where peppermint was wanted and vice versa. And her candy looked as mixed as it tasted. She saved, by great economy, enough to take a night course in a business college. Della had been raised on the farm, and all her education came from irregular attendance at a district

A Failure

Della jumped, she could not be dreaming.

the prospective buyer, who immediately bought a similar cottage across the street.

"Say," cried Mr. Napton, angrily, "know you can't enroll the brains of the world for $2, but I guess I've got a right to expect some one with a little bit of sense."

Usually he was a mild spoken and rather pleasant man, but it seemed that he had counted upon the commission from the sale of that run-down cottage. He added, more gently: "I'm sorry, Miss Della, but I guess I can't keep you."

Della looked at him without speaking. She wanted to laugh and she wanted to cry. What was the work that she could do best? She had tried everything that the city had to offer and she had been a failure at everything else. But she walked determinedly to an employment office and applied.

"References," asked the pert girl at the desk.

"No," he thought there was always an opening for servants. Della said in surprise. "But I can give references. I've had several handiwork I've roomed."

"Oh, gracious," impatiently. "Don't want that kind. We want to know if you can do the work. But you can leave your name. Maybe some one who isn't particular."

"Have you found any one yet?" asked a familiar voice. Della jumped. She was looking at her in a puzzled fashion. She thought she hated to let him of all people, know what an egregious failure she was.

"No," Mr. Napton, said the girl pertly. "And I don't really think we can find any one to suit you. We've sent you eight girls."

"You've shipped my little boy, one sent my little girl for beer, one had money all the time, and the other two got married," Mr. Napton spoke in the time of one who has borne all he can. "And," he continued plaintively, "the work is light. I keep a housekeeper and a carter. He sighs. Then he said contemptuously to Della, "I hope you don't feel hard about my nasty words this afternoon. I was sorry, and maybe you'll get along better next week. If you'll come back—"

"No," I wouldn't get along any better," said Della bluntly. But her heart had leaped at the courtesy of his voice. "But I can take care of children," Mrs. Mrs. Napton—

"Mrs. Napton," said Mr. Napton soberly, "has been dead two years. And—oh, if you were know how hard it is for a man to look after three small children. You—your not really in earnest! You don't mean it!"

Della laughed, partly with joy, partly in amusement at the hopeless incredulity of his voice. "But I do," she said shyly. "When do you want me?"

"This minute," he vowed.

"Isn't she the luckiest one?" asked the pert girl of nobody in particular. "I bet a year to a dozen that she end by getting married." And though she never knew it she won the doughnut.

To Bride-Elect

Miss Mittie Ruffin was hostess at a 500 party and stocking shower Saturday afternoon in compliment to Miss Eva Merritt, a bride-elect.

Pink roses and many lovely daisies formed the decoration of the home, and a French basket filled with pink roses graced the center of the prettily appointed table. Miss Ruffin's guests included sixteen friends.

The program for Tuesday followed: 8 P. M.—Opening session service—annual convention.

Selections from the orchestra—Mrs. J. W. Malone.

Welcome from the City of Atlanta—Mrs. A. H. McCoy.

Welcome from Andrew College—Mrs. Robert T. Daniel.

Response for the Federation—Mrs. Robert T. Daniel.

The Annual Address of the President—Mrs. Z. Pittman.

A Message from Our Governor's Wife—Mrs. John M. Blanton.

Introduction of guests.

Address by the President of the General Federation of Women's Clubs—Mrs. Percy V. Pennycocker.

The social side of the day was the large reception tendered the visitors by the women of Cuthbert, which was a very interesting and enjoyable affair.

Sewell-May

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Sewell announce the marriage of their daughter, Jennie Ruth, to Mr. Charles William May, of Atlanta, which took place Sunday, October 26, at their home in Newnan. No cards.

not concealed her relief that there would be one less to feed.

Well, it had come to that at last with her. She must try housework. Della might be a failure, but she had a large share of pride. She didn't care about dragging under some ill-tempered woman, and it wouldn't be her luck to find a pleasant mistress, she thought. She would be a failure at that, as she had been a failure at everything else. But she walked determinedly to an employment office and applied.

"References," asked the pert girl at the desk.

"No," he thought there was always an opening for servants. Della said in surprise. "But I can give references. I've had several handiwork I've roomed."

Miss Calhoun's Luncheon

Miss Harriet Calhoun entertained at luncheon Tuesday at her home on Peachtree street. The occasion was the giving of twelve friends of the hostess to meet Miss Edna Jackson, a lovely bride-elect, and a group of the season's most charming debutantes, Miss Margaret Grant, Miss Katherine Ellis and Miss Adgate Ellis.

The table was artistically decorated with pumpkins filled with clusters of grapes and the place cards and favors suggested the Halloween season. Each place was marked with a small mirror, before which a miniature candle burned brightly.

Miss Calhoun was handsome in a gown of canary-colored crepe de chine, draped, and finished with a French touch of blue about the corsage.

Allen's Fur-Trimmed Tailored Suits

Interesting and Original Models

$25, $35 and up to $97.50

Once upon a time, the tailored suit was just a coat and a skirt of plainest lines possible and severe finish. Today it is imperitively the reverse. It has appropriated every liberty known to the tailoring art and many more of late adoption.

The adoption of the novelty tailored suit is worldwide.

The Allen collection might also be said to be worldwide. They have come to us from the world centers of fashion—referring to our handsome imported suits; and so precious and alert are our own American makers that barely is a foreign idea originated, before it is adopted by New York, instantly reproduced and placed within the reach of the moderate purse.

It is the purpose of our suit department to offer you the latest and the strictly modish tailored suit at modest prices—$25 and $35.

Fur-Trimmed Broadcloth Suits $35

Fine quality broadcloth suits in brown, blue and black, showing two styles, deserve honorable mention. Both of these extremely engaging models are fashioned on the lines of the Russian Blouse, with Mandarin sleeves. Buttoning high to the neck, it is finished with fur. One of these beautiful suits has collar and cuffs of skunk, the other mole, one has satin sash with fringe, the other stitched down belt with pleated Peplum below—each very different—each equally handsome, each $35

There are others of Jacquard worsteds—an elegantly finished fabric—velvet, plush and fur trimmed. Draped skirts, high waist lines, trimmed with velvet buttons.

And indeed the assortment affords a few very smart conservative models in black and colors, including navy blue, brown and mahogany.

Wonderfully Smart Suits at $25

Excepting the small difference in the expense of the materials used we can say the same good words for our splendid suits at $25. We have always made a specialty of showing good suits at this price. Each year we have been able to improve the suit without changing the price. These of jacquard worsteds, men's wear serge, cheviot mixtures—all of them supporting a high wearing quality and a beautiful finish. $25

These are the kind of Suits you will find here. Not just coats and skirts made after accepted fashions, but rich fine materials worked up into lines and combinations to please even a born artist.

Other prices are $40, $45, $50 & $60, and—

MR. AND MRS. TESUALD YORKE AT DRAMA LEAGUE

The meeting of the Atlanta Drama League, held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tesuald Yorke, was one of unusual interest.

The salon room at the Georgian terrace was filled with a large audience of women who were gathered for the weekly assembly.

—Mrs. John King Otley read "The Voyage of the Argosy," an impressive and delightful manner, and the attention of her audience was held until the very last line of the interesting play.

The drama, is by Dr. G. W. Barker, and is a play of much force and interest, the author being widely known in England, not so much from his own literary achievements as having been sponsor for the production of many far-reaching plays.

Bernard Shaw was first presented to the English public by Mr. Barker.

—Mrs. and Mrs. Tesuald Yorke at meeting.

Plans have been made for an informal and delightful hour to follow the meeting of the league.

A cordial invitation has been extended to, and accepted by, Mr. and Mrs. Otley to be the guests of the society for 5 o'clock tea.

Mrs. Yorke is widely known on the stage as Miss Annie Russell, and Mr. Yorke is the leading man in the dramatic productions. Both Mr. and Mrs. Yorke are very much interested in the upshot of the drama and have given much time and thought to the revival of the old English plays, and it is hoped that they both can be prevailed upon to give a short talk upon their interpretation of this most interesting line of work.

OUR ASTROLOGER

"The stars incline, but do not compel."

KOSKOSCE.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1913.

Walk in a narrow path.

To escape the planets' wrath.

According to astrology this is a day of ill fortune. There is a menace which is read to indicate danger of accidents and serious quarrels.

With Mercury, Jupiter and Mars all in adverse aspect it is well for men and women to exercise caution, the seers declare, and their warning is emphatic, since they interpret the positioning of the stars as peculiarly unfortunate.

Inasmuch as the influences are supposed to exaggerate petty worries, it is well to set a guard on speech and action. While this aspect has power to bring about a change in the stars' disposition, which wreck business and domestic relations.

Letters and contracts are under an ill omen. The signing of papers should be delayed. If one heeds the stars.

As Mercury rules the memory, the sense of sight and the understanding the malleable power of the planet is held to be peculiarly dangerous.

There is a sinister augury for all who deal with lawyers, judges and bankers. Business failures are foreshadowed. Speculation is held to be particularly dangerous under this configuration.

Mars in adverse aspect is believed to cause accidents to persons connected with machinery. Engineers, contractors and iron workers are supposed to be in peril.

Scolds, cuts and burns are said to be common when Mars is unfriendly. By this same dental and surgical operations are to be avoided.

Children born on this day are likely to be careless and difficult to manage. They should be trained to concentration. Girls may be subject to many jealousies. (Copyright, 1912, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The federal grand jury met again on Tuesday and returned indictments in nine cases.

It was announced that nothing of any public interest had been done by the jury at Tuesday's session.

Our Diamonds Are Correctly Classified

There is much uncertainty about diamonds, except to the expert. They should be chosen at a store in which you have implicit confidence. We strive earnestly to merit such confidence.

Diamonds are like gold, when wisely bought. They are worth their cost anywhere on earth, and are constantly increasing in value. Our gems will bring their price anywhere and at any time—we guarantee them positively.

Examine our rings—not only solitaires, but all styles for all needs.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

BY THOMAS W. YORKE.

(Copyright, 1912, by J. G. Lloyd.)

Look before you leap. The water may be deep.

That is the very best kind of advice, but most people find it out when it is too late. Grandfather Frog did, or course he had heard that little verse all his life. Indeed, he had been very fond of saying it to those who came to the Snilling Pool to ask his advice.

But Grandfather Frog seemed to have left all his wisdom behind him when he left the Snilling Pool to go out into the Great World. You see it is very hard for anyone who has been brought up for advice to turn right around and take advice themselves. So Grandfather Frog had been getting into a scrape about a great splash.

Of course when he had seen the cool, sparkling water of the spring it had seemed to him that he just couldn't wait and second to get into it. He was so hot and dry and dreadfully thirsty and uncomfortable! And so, oh, dear me—Grandfather Frog didn't look at all before he leaped! No, sir, he didn't! He just dived in with a great long jump. Oh, how good that water felt! For a few minutes he couldn't think of anything else. It was cooler than the water of the Snilling Pool, because, as you know, it was spring. But it felt cold to him when he landed, and Grandfather Frog just closed his eyes and floated there in pure happiness.

Presently he opened his eyes to look around. Then he blinked them rapidly for a minute or so. He rubbed them to make sure that he was awake. His heart seemed to sink way down toward his toes. "Chug-a-rum!" exclaimed Grandfather Frog. "Chug-a-rum!" And after that for a long time he didn't say a word.

You see it was this way. All around him rose perfectly straight, smooth walls of blue, blue sky right over his head and whispering leaves of trees and bushes. Over the edge of the smooth straight wall grasses were sending. But they were so far above his head, so dreadfully far! There wasn't any place to climb out! Grandfather Frog was in a prison! He didn't understand it at all, but it was so.

Of course Farmer Brown's boy could have told him all about it. A long time before Farmer Brown himself had found that spring, and because the water was so clear and cold and pure he had cleared away all the dirt and rubbish around it. Then he had brooded the bottom out of a nice clean barrel and had dug down where the water bubbled up out of the ground and had set the barrel down in the hole and had filled in the bottom with clean white sand for the water to bubble up through. About half a barrel he had put at the bottom. Of course the water never could fill the barrel, because when it reached that hole it ran out. This left a straight, smooth wall up above, a wall altogether too high for Grandfather Frog to jump over from the inside.

Poor old Grandfather Frog! He wished more than ever that he never had thought of leaving the Snilling Pool to see the Great World. Sound and round he swam, but he couldn't see any way out of it. The little hole where the water ran out was too small for him to squeeze through, as he found out by trying and trying. Sixty as he could see he had just got to stay there all the rest of his life. Worse still, he knew that Farmer Brown's boy sometimes came to the spring for a drink, for he had seen him do it. That meant that the very next time he came he would find Grandfather Frog, because there was no place to hide.

Frog thought of that he just lost heart. "Yes, sir, he just lost heart. He gave up all hope of ever seeing the Snilling Pool again, and two big tears ran out of his big goggle eyes.

BOLL WORM DIFFERENT FROM THE BOLL WEEVIL

Department of Agriculture Corrects Erroneous Impression Prevalent in South

(BY RALPH SMITH).
WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 28.—The federal department of agriculture has discovered that in many sections of the south the cotton boll weevil is being confused with the cotton boll worm. It is regarded as important to the cotton planters that the erroneous impression should be dispelled. If the farmers are to combat intelligently the ravages of the pests.

"The boll-worm is the larva of a moth, and is only distantly related to the weevil," the department explains in a bulletin. "The weevil belongs to the large natural group of beetles. The worm, when hatched, is very tiny, but grows rapidly, becoming a greenish or brownish insect, with a head like a weevil. It feeds on the cotton plant, and is found only in the cotton square or leaf, and never exceeds one-half inch in length."

The department advises that a farmer can insure a future cotton crop against injury from the boll worm with comparative little trouble and expense. If he will pick his cotton as quickly as possible and immediately thereafter spray under and harrow the fields.

POLICE SEIZE PLUMES FROM WOMAN'S BONNET

Aggrieved Valued at $600 Held Up by Inspectors According to Recent Law

(Special Dispatch to The Journal).
NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The largest seizure of plumes in this city, made since the new regulations prohibiting the importation of plumes were made, was made Tuesday at the customs house in which that of plumes valued at $600 was taken from Miss Edna McLaughlin, daughter of a former police inspector here, who arrived yesterday from Europe. The young woman frankly declared the five feathers were part of her apparel, which was valued in all at $2,000, and was shocked when she learned that regardless of her declaration the plumes would be seized.

SEN. FLETCHER INDORSSES CURRENCY LEGISLATION

Florida Statesman Says Wilson's Plans Ought To Be Adopted at an Early Date

(BY RALPH SMITH).
WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 28.—Senator Fletcher, of Florida, gave out a ringing endorsement of the administration currency legislation. "I am earnestly in favor of prompt action," said Mr. Fletcher. "I think delay is most unfortunate for every standpoint."

"The president was absolutely right in consulting the two measures at the same time. It is a most extraordinary (in more ways than one) reason, and it is good reason to admit that much quicker action on the tariff bill, and that the banking and currency bill would be ready for immediate action after the tariff bill passed. He showed the country and the people generally need and needed them."

"The reduction of duties and other reforms in the tariff bill have not produced the depression predicted by opponents. It has been a success. It has relieved a great many people. It has relieved a great many people. It has relieved a great many people."
